A PACIFIC CABLE.

A Prediction That One Will Be Laid Before Very Long.

Chicago, January 29—A cable across the Pacific ocean within a year and a half is the prediction of Attorney-General Ashford of the Sandwich Islands. "I have spent some time in this country in interesting people in the proposed cable," he said. "We need it badly. Two lines are proposed—one from British Columbia to Australia, an English affair, and the second from the United States to Japan. Both will touch the Sandwich Islands. I can go back feeling confident that one or the other line will be laid at an early date."

LONG VOYAGE OF THE AUSTRALIA.

The steamer Australia was eight days on her latest passage hence to San Francisco. The call says: It has been many a long day since the Australia occupied eight days in making the passage from Honolulu. She experienced tolerably fair weather until Friday, when she encountered the full fury of the southeast gale that blew with hurricane force. A terrible sea was running, and Captain Houdette deemed it advisable to leave to, as it was dangerous to run before it. The steamer lay head to the sea for twenty hours. On Friday afternoon she shipped a heavy sea about the main rigging on the port side, which struck the after end of the house. The cabin window shutters were torn from their fastenings, and the door of Purser Keil's room was stove in, and the place filled with water. No other damage occurred.

Island and seven of the eight Representatives of Districts, thus securing sixteen out of seventeen seats in the Legislature for two years, six of the Nobles holding for four years, and three for six years. The day passed off very quietly in all the city precincts, and at no time was there a great crowd at any of the polling places. Business was suspended in the Government departments, also by the two banks and many of the mercantile houses. There was little or no friction at the polls, no open intimidation of voters being practised by either side. In fact, at some places the workers of both parties were decidedly slow in doing their legitimate business. Reform headquarters were in Spreckels' block, those of the National Reform Party at the Hawaiian Hotel. A large crowd gathered at the hotel in the evening to hear the results, and cheering and congratulations were heard there until nearly ten o'clock, when all quietly dispersed. Mr. E. C. Macfarlane invited the victorious candidates present, together with a few friends, to a collation in the dining room, at which the events and humors of the contest were glowingly discussed. Below will be found the returns, corrected up to the latest moment:
